
Hi, my name's Peter Rebik.

I turn complex ideas into clear, visual solutions.

I'm a designer and art director that bridges strategy and execution, helping organisations define their visual presence across every touchpoint.

I'm seeking Skilled Worker sponsorship in the UK - my wife and I plan to move to Glasgow to be near friends and family as we expect our first child March 1.

Hi, I'm Peter.

I'm a designer and art directpr focused on bringing clarity to complex ideas through brand systems, campaigns, and communications. My work sits at the intersection of strategy and execution, helping organisations define what they're saying, how they say it, and how it comes to life across every touchpoint.

I've led projects ranging from scalable brand systems and multi-channel campaigns to messaging and digital experiences, delivering measurable results across engagement, recruitment, and audience reach. I'm drawn to work with real-world impact, where clear communication can shift perception, support growth, and make something more useful or accessible.

With over 13 years of design experience, I'm able to help organisations better understand the problem, develop a creative approach, build systems and lead the work through delivery.

I develop campaigns that connect strategy, audience insight and creative execution. From concept and messaging through art direction and multi-channel delivery, I create work designed to engage audiences and deliver measurable results.

I develop campaigns that connect strategy, audience insight and creative execution. From concept and messaging through art direction and multi-channel delivery, I create work designed to engage audiences and deliver measurable results.

I make complex ideas easier to understand and act on. I help organisations find the right message, shape compelling narratives and translate strategy into clear communications that resonate with audiences.

I create the systems behind good design. From asset libraries and reusable templates to brand guidance and streamlined workflows, I help teams work more consistently, efficiently and independently.

I design digital experiences around user needs. Through content structure, user journeys, wireframes, web design and research, I turn complex information into straightforward, accessible experiences.

I bring people, ideas and disciplines together to solve complex problems. I lead projects, mentor designers and collaborate with stakeholders and cross-functional teams, keeping work focused on clear objectives.
